

JOB PLACEMENT

University of Arizona. Tenure-track position in linguistic anthropology at the assistant professor level, to begin fall of 2008, contingent upon availability of funding. The area of specialization is open. Duties and responsibilities include maintaining an active teaching and research career, mentoring graduate students and teaching four courses per year. To ensure consideration, materials must be submitted by October 1, 2007. This is a re-posting. Please note new open and closing dates. If you have applied for this job previously, your application is still under consideration, and it is not necessary to re-apply. The department is seeking an individual who is able to work with diverse students and colleagues, and who has experience with a variety of teaching methods and curricular perspectives. As an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer, the University of Arizona recognizes the power of a diverse community and encourages applications from individuals with varied experiences, perspectives, and backgrounds. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Salary is open. Requirements: PhD in anthropology or related field in hand by August 1, 2008 is required as well as prior teaching experience, prior publication and evidence of fundable research. Applications accepted on-line only at the following website: www.uacareertrack.com/applicants/jsp/shared. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

University of California, Berkeley. Pending budgetary approval, the Native American studies program within the ethnic studies department seeks applicants for a fulltime, tenure-track position at the assistant professor rank (job no 1249). Geographic and substantive specializations are open, but the successful candidate must focus on Native North America. This hire will play a central role in the program's and the department's undergraduate and graduate missions, and will help shape the curricular and intellectual evolution of both the NAS program and the ethnic studies department. We seek a scholar with a broad and open-ended vision of NAS who engages theory at-large. The goal of our program is to bring Native American cases and materials into larger theoretical and substantive discussions in ethnic studies, American studies, or disciplinary fields, and in turn to draw on theory and method from beyond NAS in order to approach NAS in new ways and to ask new questions. The successful candidate will contribute to and thrive in larger dialogues in ethnic studies and other disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields of social and cultural study, enriching both NAS and the larger Berkeley and national dialogues in the process. The annual course load includes three undergraduate courses in NAS and one graduate course in ethnic studies for PhD students, only some of whom will conduct research on Native topics. PhD required by the time of appointment. Publications and teaching experience preferred. Applications are due by October 15, 2007, for a start date of July 1, 2008. Candidates should send letter of applica-

Contact: Richard Thomas, 703/528-1902 ext 3030; fax 703/528-3546; rthomas@aaanet.org.

Placement listings appear regularly in AN, which is distributed to all AAA members, and are posted on the Web at www.aaanet.org/careers.htm.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The deadline for submitting job placement ads for a particular issue is six weeks prior to the publication date of that issue. The AAA Executive Board strongly urges departments listing vacancies to request letters of recommendation only from candidates selected as finalists for the positions.

Statement on Policy

1. The Association endorses equal opportunity practices and reserves the right to refuse or to edit advertisements that are not in consonance with the principles of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.
2. Applicants and employers are urged to comply with the provisions of the Code of Ethics (1998), especially those relative to confidentiality of informants, and the Resolution on Open Employment (1973).
3. Statements included with placement advertisements are intended to inform potential applicants of an employer's general situation and hiring practices regarding gay and lesbian individuals. These statements, appearing as italics at the end of each ad, are provided by employers in accordance with AAA policy. AAA is not responsible for verifying the accuracy of these statements. They are not part of the actual position description submitted for publication by the employer. Applicants should inquire further with the employer to determine the level of employment benefits provided to domestic partners or to identify the employer's specific hiring practices and policies regarding practices regarding gay, lesbian, bisexual/ transgender discrimination.

Advertisers are responsible for the accuracy and completeness of their listings. The Association reserves the right to decline to publish listings that it believes are misleading or inconsistent with principles adopted by the Association. Solicitation of letters of recommendation should occur only after an initial screening of candidates to minimize inconvenience to applicants and referees. Names of referees may be requested, however. Notice of censure action taken by the American Association of University Professors and the Canadian Association of University Teachers will appear when an institution advertising a position is under censure.

NEXT DEADLINE FOR JOB PLACEMENT ADS: September 20, 2007, FOR NOVEMBER AN

PLEASE NOTE: INTERNET POSTING OF JOB PLACEMENT ADS IS AVAILABLE YEAR-ROUND.
CONTACT: RICHARD THOMAS at rthomas@aaanet.org or 703/528-1902x3030.

tion, one writing sample or publication, and three letters of recommendation to: Thomas Biolsi Coordinator, Native American Studies Program Department of Ethnic Studies 506 Barrows Hall University of California, Berkeley Berkeley, CA 94720-2570. The University of California at Berkeley is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Notes: US residents only. Employer will assist with relocation costs. Requirements: letter of application, one writing sample or publication, and three letters of recommendation. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Bowdoin College. The department of sociology and anthropology invites applications for a three-year visiting position in cultural anthropology at the level of assistant professor or instructor, beginning fall 2008. We seek candidates with expertise in South Asia. Topical fields are open. The successful candidate will teach four courses per year, including Introduction to Cultural Anthropology. Notes: local residents preferred (no relo). Competitive, negotiable. Requirements: Please submit letter of application, curriculum vitae and writing sample. Bowdoin College is accepting electronic or paper submissions, however, electronic submissions are strongly encouraged. To submit electronically, please visit www.bowdoin.edu/academic-affairs/recruit/. Three letters of reference should be sent via email to soc_anth_refs@bowdoin.edu or by mail to: Pamela Ballinger, Chair Department of Sociology and anthropology Bowdoin College 7000 College Station Brunswick, ME 04011-8470. Paper submissions can be sent to this address as well. Review of applications will begin November 30, 2007. Bowdoin is a highly selective liberal arts college on the Maine coast with a diverse student body made up of 25% students of color, 4% international students and approximately 15% first generation college students. Bowdoin College is committed to equality and diversity and is an equal opportunity employer. We encourage inquiries from candidates who will enrich and contribute to the cultural, socio-economic, and ethnic diversity of our college. Bowdoin College does not discriminate on the basis of age, race, creed, color, religion, marital status, gender, sexual orientation, veteran status, national origin, or disability status in employment, or in our education programs. For further information about the college and the department, see our website at www.bowdoin.edu. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

British Museum. With concentrated attention and highest priority focused on the collections from SE Asia, which in the British Museum originate from most parts of the region and date mainly from the last 150 years, you will curate and develop the collections of Asian ethnographic material at the museum. Your role will involve ensuring that collections are appropriately stored, displayed, researched and made accessible both directly and via publication, including the Merlin database or its successor. You will actively seek ways of relating the collections to others, in line with departmental and museum objectives, as well as helping to engage the broadest audience through an appreciation of these materials and of the cultural and historical understandings which their interpretation supports. This position will require you to undertake original research work on the collections, including field research programmes and working alongside colleagues, the wider museum and with relevant others in the UK and overseas. Requirements: A degree in anthropology, art history or relevant field of Asian studies or with equivalent experience is essential, as is having knowledge of an Asian language. Experience in object handling is desirable. You will have the ability to work as part of a team and prioritize your workload in order to meet tight deadlines whether in a museum, academic or publishing context. For further information or a full application pack, please visit www.thebritishmuseum.ac.uk/jobs email bm@peoplemedia.co.uk or telephone +44 (0) 845 601 0885, quoting reference 73237. Closing date: September 20, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

State University of New York College at Buffalo, tenure-track assistant professor, anthropology department, to begin September 1, 2008. Competitive salary. Responsibilities: Teach introductory and advanced undergraduate courses in physical/biological anthropology. Conduct research and publish in scholarly publications. Mentor, advise undergraduate students. Engage in service activities. Required Qualifications: PhD in anthropology with specialization in physical/biological anthropology. Evidence of scholarly potential and commitment to undergraduate education. Preferred qualifications: expertise and ability to teach an introductory course in human origins and upper-division courses in human variation, human evolution, primates, and forensic anthropology. Research/teaching interests in applied anthropology. Review of applications will begin November 1, 2007 and continue until position is filled. Send letter of application, cv, and contact information for three professional references to: Lisa Marie Anselmi, Search Co-Chair, Anthropology Department, Buffalo State College, HB 105, 1300 Elmwood Ave, Buffalo, NY 14222-1095. Electronic submissions are encouraged and may be submitted to anselmml@buffalostate.edu. For more information about the college, visit www.buffalostate.edu. Buffalo State is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

Carleton College, department of sociology and anthropology, seeks a social demographer for a tenure-track position, rank open, to begin September 1, 2008. An appointment to a tenurable Broom Professorship in Social Demography will be considered for senior candidates with appropriate qualifications. We are seeking candidates with teaching and research expertise in the area of social demography and social research methods. Specific substantive areas are open, including race and ethnicity, marriage and family, organizations, and immigration, especially in the US context. The successful candidate must have a commitment to undergraduate teaching in a liberal arts environment and a strong research and scholarly agenda. Compensation is competitive, and commensurate with rank and experience. Submit nominations or application, including a letter of intent, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, and names and contact information of three references in electronic format to: Jean Goss, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Carleton College, Northfield MN 55057, jgoss@carleton.edu. Carleton College is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. We are committed to developing our faculty to better reflect the diversity of our student body and American society. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

University of Chicago department of anthropology seeks to add to its faculty in sociocultural and linguistic anthropology during the next two-year period, preferably at the assistant professor or associate professor rank. Area of specialization is less important a consideration than theoretical innovation emerging from rigorous analysis of empirical material. To apply, please send a current curriculum vitae (including the names and contact information for at least four referees); a one page précis of your dissertation or most recent published monograph; and a detailed letter that describes your research, publication, and professional profile; your research and publication plans for the next 3–5 year period; and your plans for teaching at both graduate and undergraduate levels. To ensure full consideration, these preliminary application materials must be received by October 15, 2007. Review of applications will continue until positions are filled. Materials should be sent to: Chair, Committee on Faculty Recruitment, Department of Anthropology, University of Chicago, 1126 East 59th Street, Chicago, Illinois 60637-1580, USA. The University of Chicago is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

Clark University. The department of international development, community, and environment (IDCE) at Clark University seeks to fill a new tenure-track position at the mid-career level in international development and social Change with research interests in Africa to begin Academic Year 2008–09. This appointment will likely be made at the associate professor level. Significant field research and/or applied experience in developing countries are essential. Earned doctorate in any relevant discipline and evidence of effective teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels are required. Primary areas of expertise should include two or more of the following: involuntary migration, environment, humanitarian assistance, food security, gender and development, community participation and empowerment, non-governmental organizations, conflict/post-conflict and development and health. Clark's interdisciplinary department in international development, community, and environment includes a core faculty of eighteen members and a larger group of affiliate faculty engaged in interdisciplinary teaching, research, and programmatic activities. Please visit our website for more information: www.clarku.edu/idce. Applicants should show a strong commitment to working collaboratively within a cross-disciplinary program. Application should include curriculum vitae, a list of references, and a detailed statement of interest including research foci and teaching philosophy. These should be sent electronically to pobryant@clarku.edu or mailed to Chair, ID Search Committee, IDCE, Clark University, 950 Main Street, Worcester, MA 01610. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2007 and continue until the position is filled. AA/EOE. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Connecticut College. The department of anthropology invites applications for a social/cultural anthropologist and department chair at the rank of full or associate professor to begin July 1, 2008. Candidates should hold a PhD in anthropology, and have a significant record of publications, teaching experience, and leadership skills. We are especially interested in candidates working in Asia, Middle East, Oceania and Europe, with theoretical research/teaching areas of specialization that complement existing interests in the department. Responsibilities include teaching four courses/year and chairing a department of five faculty members and 30–40 majors. Connecticut College is a private, highly selective college with a strong commitment to the liberal arts tradition and an emphasis on broad interdisciplinary teaching and research. The normal teaching load for a department chair is four courses annually, and faculty are expected to contribute to the College's general education program, which includes a first-year seminar component. Salary is competitive. The college is a member of the academic career network, a resource for dual-career couples (<http://acn.fivecolleges.edu>), and is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. The college is committed by mission to developing diversity and sustaining a diverse faculty and staff. Mail cv, letter describing teaching, research and governance experience, and complete contact information for at least three references to: Christopher Steiner, Acting Chair, Department of Anthropology, Box 5595, Connecticut College, 270 Mohegan Ave, New London, CT 06320-4196. Review of applications will begin September 15, 2007 and will continue until position is filled. Interviews will be conducted at AAA. Notes: telecommuting is allowed. international candidates will be considered. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Dartmouth College department of anthropology seeks a sociocultural anthropologist for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor. We are especially interested in individuals specializing in economic, environmental, or development anthropology. Geographic area of specialization is open but should complement those of department members. The appointment will begin July 1, 2008 and the candidate must have PhD in hand prior to that date. Candidates should have an active program of field research and scholarly publications. Further, they must be committed to excellent teaching of both introductory and advanced courses in an undergraduate department of anthropology. The successful candidate will be expected to teach a four-field introductory course on a regular basis. Formal review of applications will begin by October 15, 2007, and will continue until the position is filled. Submit a one-two page letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, and the names, electronic and postal addresses and telephone and fax numbers of three references to: Chair, Sociocultural Anthropology Search Committee, Dartmouth College, Department of Anthropology, 6047 Silsby Hall, Hanover, NH 03755-3547. With parity between male and female undergraduate students and over one quarter of the students being members of minority groups, Dartmouth is one of the most diverse institutions of higher education in New England. Dartmouth College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer and has a strong commitment to diversity. We encourage applications from a broad spectrum of people, including women, persons of color, gay, lesbian, and transgender persons, persons with disabilities, and veterans. Dartmouth offers health insurance and other benefits to same-sex domestic partners. Information about all of Dartmouth's benefits is available on the web at www.dartmouth.edu/~hrs/benefits/index.html. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Davis. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor beginning July 1, 2008. The appointee must have a broad interdisciplinary background that is relevant to sociocultural anthropology. Topical and geographical area is open, while some preference will be given to candidates who work on issues related to biomedicine, law, or knowledge and epistemology. Teaching is based on a standard faculty load of four one-quarter courses per year. Candidates should have a PhD in anthropology or a related discipline by time of appointment and be able to demonstrate excellence in teaching and research. Applications received by October 26, 2007, will receive full consideration. Applicants should prepare a curriculum vitae including the names of three references; a cover letter that indicates completed research, current research program, and teaching experience; copies of up to three publications representing the applicant's current research, two graduate course syllabi and one undergraduate syllabus. Applications should be submitted online to: www.anthro.ucdavis.edu/position or may be sent to: Suad Joseph, Chair Search Committee Department of Anthropology One Shields Avenue University of California Davis, CA 95616. Address administrative questions to Royce McClellan, phone: 530/754-4936; fax: 530/752-8885; email: rlmcclellan@ucdavis.edu. The position will remain open until filled. The University of California, Davis, and the department of anthropology are interested in candidates who are committed to the highest standards of scholarship and professional activities, and to the development of a campus climate that supports equality and diversity. The University of California is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution and prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation/preference and gender identity/expression. This employer offers employment benefits to domestic partners of employees. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

University of California, Davis invites applications for the position of professor (open rank), in African studies, to begin July 1, 2008. Candidates should have earned PhD in African studies or a social science discipline with emphasis on Africa by June 30, 2007. We are especially interested in candidates working in areas of applied social science such as public policy and governance, law, religion, public health, immigration, development studies, and international relations. Applicants may possess expertise and/or training in any of a broad range of allied disciplinary areas (eg law, religion, history, sociology, economics, population studies, political science, anthropology, and international relations). Candidates should be prepared to teach undergraduate and graduate courses with cultural, political, social, and economic dimensions of the contemporary African experience as their focus. The successful appointee is expected to demonstrate academic commitment through excellence in teaching and outstanding research progress. In order to be considered for appointment at the associate or full professor rank, an applicant's record of scholarship must meet the standards for tenure at the University of California. Interested candidates should send a letter of application, curriculum vita, description of research interests, a 20- to 30-page writing sample from recent research (published or under contract with a publisher), copies of syllabi and teaching evaluation summaries from three recent courses, and three letters of recommendation. Candidates should submit application packet to Professor Milmon Harrison, Chair Search Committee, African American and African Studies Program, University of California, Davis, One Shields Avenue, 2201 Hart Hall, Davis, California 95616. Review of applications begins on September 24, 2007, and will continue until the position is filled. The University of California, Davis, and the African American and African Studies program are interested in candidates who are committed to the highest standards of scholarship and professional activities, and to the development of a campus climate that supports equality and diversity. The University of California is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Visit our home page at <http://aas.ucdavis.edu/>. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

Florida State University department of anthropology seeks a department chair to help build a dynamic doctoral program that emphasizes a scientific, empirically-grounded approach to understanding human evolution, symbolic systems and material culture. The department, which is within the science area of the college of arts and sciences, includes archaeologists, biological anthropologists, and cultural anthropologists who cross traditional sub-field boundaries by conducting interdisciplinary field work and research on topics ranging from early hominins to present-day societies. We seek a senior scholar with a distinguished, on-going record of active field or laboratory research who will sharpen our focus and lead the growth of our faculty and our doctoral program. We are especially interested in candidates who can enhance our strengths in archaeology or biological anthropology. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, and names and contact information for three references to Chair Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306-7772. Deadline is December 1, 2007; applications received by November 1 will be considered for interviews at the AAA meetings. Florida State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, committed to diversity in hiring, and a public records agency. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

SUNY at Geneseo. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in the culture areas of Mesoamerica and/or South America for September 2008. The ideal candidate will be able to make contributions to our curricula in archaeology, ethnoarchaeology, ethnohistory and ethnography. In this search, the college wishes to reinforce its commitments to increase faculty and curricular diversity recognizing that to provide a diverse learning environment is to prepare students for personal and professional success in an increasingly multicultural society. In their application, candidates should address how they can contribute to diversity, a core value of the Geneseo college community. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to Geneseo's core mission of excellent undergraduate teaching while also sustaining an active research and publication agenda and providing university, professional, and community service. Qualifications must include evidence of teaching effectiveness and a PhD in anthropology by December 31, 2007. To apply, submit an online faculty application by October 15, 2007, at <http://jobs.geneseo.edu>. Please attach cover letter, vita, statement of educational philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, sample course syllabi, and sample of written work. In addition, submit three recent letters of recommendation and transcripts to: Paul Pacheco, Search Committee Chair, Department of Anthropology, SUNY Geneseo, Geneseo, New York 14454. All applicants are subject to drug and criminal background checks. SUNY Geneseo is highly selective and is consistently rated among the top public universities in the north by US News & World Report. Located in the national historic landmark village of Geneseo, the residential campus overlooks the picturesque Genesee Valley, just 30 miles south of the major metropolitan area of Rochester and 70 miles east of Buffalo. SUNY Geneseo is a member of the council of public liberal arts colleges, a national alliance of leading liberal arts colleges in the public sector. SUNY Geneseo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer committed to recruiting, supporting, and fostering a diverse community of outstanding faculty, staff and students. Requirements: Qualifications must include evidence of teaching effectiveness and a PhD in anthropology by December 31, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Georgia State University. The department of anthropology at Georgia State University anticipates hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in August 2008. Qualifications include a PhD in anthropology with specialization in Biological anthropology, an active research agenda, and evidence of teaching excellence. Candidates whose research is with living populations, and has a strong theoretical focus, are particularly encouraged to apply. Research specializations may include human variation and adaptation; race; human growth and development; genetics; and disease/health. Geographic area is open. The candidate will be expected to teach introductory four-field anthropology, introductory biological anthropology, and upper division/graduate courses, including theories and methods in biological anthropology. Review of applications will begin October 29, 2007, and preliminary interviews will be held at the AAA meetings in November 2007. Please send cover letter, cv and evidence of research and teaching to Chair, Bioanth Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, PO Box 3998, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30302. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

Gustavus Adolphus College invites applications for a 1-year full time leave replacement in the area of cultural anthropology for academic year 2008-09. Doctorate preferred, ABD considered. The successful candidate will teach six courses, including Anthropological Theory and Anthropology of Religion, one area studies course (preferably in Latin America or the African Diaspora, but any geographical area outside of N America and Europe welcome), and three other sub-disciplinary courses of the candidate's choosing (eg, psychological, political, economic, applied, urban, historical, medical, ecological anthropology, language and culture, or other) in consultation with members of the academic department. To apply, send letter of application, curriculum vitae, statements of teaching philosophy and research interests, and three professional letters of recommendation to: Richard A Hilbert, Chair Department of Sociology & Anthropology Gustavus Adolphus College 800 West College Avenue St. Peter, MN 56082-1498 www.gustavus.edu/oncampus/humanresources/index.cfm. For more details, contact Richard Hilbert at rhilbert@gustavus.edu. Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2007, and continue until the position is filled. Gustavus Adolphus College is a co-educational, private, Lutheran (ELCA), residential, national liberal arts college of 2500 students. It is the practice of the College to provide equal educational and employment opportunities for all. We specifically encourage applications from women, minorities, and persons with disabilities. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of Hawai'i, Manoa assistant professor, position no 83458, college of social sciences, department of anthropology, University of Hawai'i, Manoa, full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position in archaeology to begin August 1, 2008. We seek candidates who have a close familiarity with theoretical issues, an established geographic commitment to East Asia or Southeast Asia, and strengths that complement the existing faculty in our program. University of Hawai'i faculty members engage in teaching, research and service. Duties: Teach undergraduate and graduate courses; supervise graduate students; seek extramural funding and maintain an active research program; publish research results; assist in the development of the archaeology program; actively engage in departmental governance and activities; advance the university's reputation for global studies. Minimum qualifications: PhD completed in anthropology or archaeology by time of appointment; previous fieldwork and/or analytical experience in East Asia or Southeast Asia; a strong publication record and active research program; and ability to work collaboratively within a four-field anthropology program. We are most interested in applicants who complement existing department and University strengths. Desirable qualifications: specialization in historical ecology and/or political economy; demonstrated success in securing extramural support; previous experience in cultural resource management nationally or internationally; focus on continental East and Southeast Asia; documented evidence of excellence in teaching and advising graduate students and upper-division undergraduate students. Salary Range: commensurate with qualifications and experience. To apply: submit a cover letter indicating how you satisfy the minimum and desirable qualifications; curriculum vitae; names, addresses, full contact information for three references; and a sample of published scholarly work to Chair, Search Committee in Asian Archaeology, Department of Anthropology, University of Hawai'i at Manoa, 2424 Maile Way, Saunders Hall 346, Honolulu, HI 96822. Closing Date: December 14, 2007. The University of Hawai'i at Manoa is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. The University is building a culturally diverse faculty and staff and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on

Report to the Membership Domestic Partner Benefits and Discrimination Practices

The period reviewed by this report is May 2006 through April 2007. The question Does your institution/company/organization have a non-discrimination policy on the books regarding sexual orientation? seems to be well understood by employers using the AAA Job Placement service. However, it appears that employers need to be educated about what it means to discriminate or not on the basis of gender identity/expression. To educate employers on these issues we link to the Human Rights Campaign website for workplace issues.

Of the employers using the AAA service during the reporting period, the responses were as follows:

Does this employer prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference?

☐ Yes 234 (76.47%) ☐ No 72 (23.52%)

Does this employer prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression?

☐ Yes 233 (76.14%) ☐ No 73 (23.85%)

Note: members are encouraged to go to the HRC web page (www.hrc.org, under "Get Informed," select "Workplace," then "Domestic Partner Benefits.") for more information about employers and the benefits they provide.

This employer offers health insurance benefits to:

☐ same-sex domestic partners 45 (14.70%)
☐ opposite-sex domestic partners 44 (14.37%)
☐ same and opposite-sex domestic partners 113 (36.92%)
☐ does not offer these other benefits to partners . . . 104 (33.98%)

sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of Hawai'i, Manoa, assistant professor, position no. 83004, college of social sciences, department of anthropology, University of Hawai'i, Manoa, full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position in cultural anthropology, with specialization in medical anthropology, beginning August 1, 2008. Medical anthropology is conceived broadly and inclusively as the investigation of culture, society, biology, health, and illness. Theoretical and research interests should complement and engage current faculty strengths. Duties: Teach undergraduate and graduate courses; supervise graduate students; seek extramural funding and maintain an active research program; publish research results; assist in the development of the medical anthropology concentration; actively engage in departmental governance and activities; advance the University's reputation for global studies. Minimum Qualifications: PhD in anthropology; evidence of scholarly achievement including 1) publications; and 2) ongoing research in medical anthropology. Desirable Qualifications: Evidence of extramurally-funded research; experience, or interest to develop research, in the Pacific and Asia. Salary Range: commensurate with qualifications and experience. To Apply: Submit a cover letter indicating how you satisfy the minimum and desirable qualifications, curriculum vitae, and names, addresses, and contact information for three references to: Chair, Search Committee in Medical Anthropology, Department of Anthropology, University of Hawai'i, 2424 Maile Way, Honolulu, HI 96822. Closing Date: December 14, 2007. The University of Hawai'i at Manoa is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. The University is building a culturally diverse faculty and staff and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Hobart and William Smith Colleges invite applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship in its department of anthropology and sociology beginning in the fall of 2008. We seek an anthropologist or sociologist with research specialization in South Asia who will be prepared to teach broadly across areas such as race and ethnicity, including the study of multiculturalism and multicultural societies, and development studies. Competence in gender and feminist studies and training and experience in ethnographic or related field method and/or a practice-oriented or applied area preferred. We welcome candidates with interest in areas such as social movements, medical anthropology or sociology, or community studies. We require an individual who is genuinely interdisciplinary and who is prepared to teach at all levels within an undergraduate curriculum. Although a PhD completed by September 2008 is preferred, ABDs nearing completion will be considered. Founded as Hobart College for men and William Smith College for women, Hobart and William Smith Colleges today are a highly selective residential liberal arts institution with a single administration, faculty and curriculum but separate dean's offices, student governments, athletic programs and traditions. The Colleges are located in a small diverse city in the Finger Lakes region of New York State. With an enrollment of 1,928, the colleges offer 62 different majors and minors from which students choose two areas of concentration, one of which must be an interdisciplinary program. The department of anthropology and sociology has a strong record of attracting and serving students and has excellent office and classroom facilities. Candidates should find especially attractive opportunities to participate in the colleges' extensive foreign study programs and numerous interdisciplinary programs and departments, including those in Environmental Studies; Latin American Studies; Cognition, Logic, and Language; Critical Social Studies; Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Studies; Media and Society; Urban Studies; and Women's Studies. Hobart and William Smith Colleges are committed to attracting and supporting faculty and staff comprised of women and men that fully represent the racial, ethnic, and cultural diversity of the nation and actively seek applications from under-represented groups. The colleges do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, marital status, national origin, age, disability, veteran's status, or sexual orientation or any other protected status. Please send cv, a sample of writing, contact information and arrange for three letters of reference to be sent directly to Chair, Anthropology/Sociology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology and Sociology, Hobart and William Smith Colleges, Geneva, NY 14456. The application deadline for this position is October 1, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of Iowa, department of anthropology, invites applications for a tenure-track position in medical anthropology, at the rank of assistant professor, beginning August 2008. Requirements include PhD in hand by the time of the appointment, an established publication record, a strong research program, and previous teaching experience. Applicants whose topical and geographical foci complement expertise currently present among the medical anthropology faculty are especially welcome. Teaching load is four courses per year. Teaching responsibilities include a required introductory course in sociocultural anthropology and undergraduate and graduate courses in the candidate's areas of expertise. Salary commensurate with experience. The department of anthropology and the college of liberal arts and sciences are strongly committed to gender and ethnic diversity; the strategic plans of the university, college and department reflect this commitment. The University of Iowa is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, representative publications, details of previous teaching experience, prospective courses, and contact information for three references to: Michael Chibnik, Medical Anthropology Search Committee Chair, Department of Anthropology, University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242. Screening of applications will begin on December 3, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of Iowa, department of anthropology, invites applications for a tenure-track position in biological anthropology specializing in anthropological genetics, at the rank of assistant professor, beginning August 2008. Requirements include: PhD in hand by the time of the appointment, an established publication record, a strong research program, and previous teaching experience. Anthropological geneticists whose research includes theoretical modeling of molecular genetic markers to infer human and non-human primate evolutionary history and adaptation, and/or the genetic basis for complex morphological traits are especially welcome. Teaching responsibilities include required introductory and core undergraduate courses in biological anthropology and graduate courses in the candidate's area of expertise. Salary commensurate with experience. Start-up funding and laboratory space are available. The department of anthropology and the college of liberal arts and sciences are strongly committed to gender and ethnic diversity; the strategic plans of the university, college and department reflect this commitment. The University of Iowa is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, representative publications, details of previous teaching experience, prospective courses, and contact information for three references to: Robert G. Franciscus, Biological Anthropology Search Committee Chair, Department of Anthropology, University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242. Screening of applications will begin on December 3, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Irvine. The department of criminology, law and society at the invites applications for a position at the assistant professor level to begin July 2008 (teaching duties to begin fall 2008). Substantive areas are open, but preference will be given to candidates whose work lies at the intersection of criminology and law and society. PhD required. For an appointment at an advanced assistant professor rank, evidence of success in securing extramural funding to support research and graduate students is desired. The department of criminology, law and society is one of three departments in the interdisciplinary school of social ecology at the University of California, Irvine, and our research and teaching programs reflect a strong commitment to interdisciplinary scholarship. To ensure consideration, application files should be completed by November 2, 2007. Applications must be uploaded electronically and should include: a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, representative scholarship, and three letters of recommendation. Please refer to the "employment" link on the following website for instructions on how to apply: www.sococo.uci.edu. The University of California is an equal opportunity employer committed to excellence through diversity and encourages applications from all qualified applicants including women, minorities, and other under-represented groups. UCI is responsive to the needs of dual career couples, is dedicated to work-life balance through an array of family-friendly policies, and is the recipient of an NSF Advance Award for gender equity. Please direct questions about these positions to Professor Kitty Calavita at: kccalavi@uci.edu. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Ithaca College seeks a cultural anthropologist for a tenure eligible position. PhD in hand at the time of application required; full-time teaching experience beyond the TA level preferred. The successful candidate must be able to teach Introduction to cultural anthropology and various middle and upper level courses at the undergraduate level. Topical interests include visual anthropology, gender, psychological anthropology, and gerontology. Excluded are medical anthropology and ethnomusicology. Geographic focus excludes North America, southern Africa, and South Asia. Interested individuals should apply online at www.icjobs.org. Review of materials will begin November 1, 2007, and continue until position is filled. Ithaca College is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Members of underrepresented groups (including people of color, persons with disabilities, military veterans and women) are encouraged to apply. Requirements: PhD in hand at the time of application required; full-time teaching experience beyond the TA level preferred. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of Kentucky, department of anthropology invites applications for appointment at the rank of assistant professor for fall 2008. We seek an applied anthropologist with an active applied research program that complements current departmental strengths in ecological and economic anthropology, medical anthropology, gender studies, and anthropology of development. Geographic area is open. The department is looking for areas of topical specialization that include policy studies, environmental sustainability, rural and agricultural development, non-governmental organizations, and/or participatory and community development. The successful candidate is expected to be committed to the application of anthropological knowledge toward solving social and human problems and to have practical experience working with governmental and non-governmental agencies, including humanitarian, development, and community-based organizations. A track-record or potential for generating extra-mural research funds will be an additional asset. This position is a full-time, tenure track faculty appointment with full benefits. PhD in hand at the time of appointment is required. Teaching load is 2/2 and includes both undergraduate and graduate courses. The department of anthropology is a national leader in applied anthropology, development studies, and economic anthropology and has approximately 60 graduate students and 140 undergraduate majors. The University of Kentucky is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and values diversity. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply. For consideration send letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and names of three references by November 15, 2007, to Applied Anthropology Search Committee Head, Department of Anthropology, 211 Lafferty Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506-0024. Notes: salary open. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Knox College, department of anthropology and sociology invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor level to begin September 2008. Knox is an independent, highly selective liberal arts institution with a diverse student body and a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching. The department offers a joint anthropology-sociology major which emphasizes the complementarities of the two disciplines and which culminates in faculty-tutored student research. Qualifications: PhD or advanced ABD in anthropology. Research and teaching interests are open, but the strongest applicants will be those whose specialties complement the strengths of our existing faculty. Persons interested in learning more about Knox may consult the college's website at www.knox.edu and the department's site at www.knox.edu/x1707.xml. In keeping with the college's 170-year commitment to equal rights, Knox actively encourages women and members of other underrepresented groups to apply. Send cover letter, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching ability (including teaching evaluations and sample syllabi for courses you have taught or would like to teach), a description of current research and research interests (including a writing sample), and three letters of reference to: Jon Wagner, Department of Anthropology and Sociology, Knox College, Box K-73, 2 East South St., Galesburg, IL 61401-4999. Deadline for applications is November 1. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Lewis and Clark College invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship with a focus on contemporary China. Field research in China is required. Depending on training, the successful candidate will be housed in either the department of international affairs, department of political science, or department of sociology/anthropology. A PhD is required at the start of employment in August 2008. The candidate will work closely with the college's interdisciplinary East Asian Studies program. Teaching load is five courses per year, including at least two courses specific to China and at least one concerning East Asia more broadly. Opportunities exist for faculty to participate in the college's first-year general education program. Potential for excellent teaching and an active research program are essential. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2007, and continue until the position is filled. A complete application must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a letter of application which includes a statement of educational philosophy, teaching experience, and research interests; (3) evidence of teaching effectiveness, including teaching evaluations if available; (4) sample of scholarship; (5) three letters of recommendation sent under separate cover and (6) graduate transcripts. Send to: Keith Dede, Chair, East Asian Studies Search Committee, MSC 30, Lewis and Clark College, 0615 SW Palatine Hill Road, Portland, OR 97219. Lewis and Clark, a private liberal arts college with 1,800 undergraduates, is an Equal Opportunity employer that welcomes and encourages applications from women and minority candidates. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. Negotiable. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Lewis and Clark College department of sociology and anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level. We are interested in applicants whose research primarily relates to the Sub Saharan African experience in global context. Candidates who also examine African transnational connections in the Americas and/or the Caribbean are encouraged to apply. Candidates should have expertise in at least one of the following areas: diaspora/migration, community/kinship or language/performance. Preference will be given to candidates who have the ability to teach quantitative research methods. The normal teaching load is five courses per academic year, and may include regular participation in the college's general education program. A PhD in sociology or anthropology, excellent teaching credentials, and an appreciation of the role of research at an undergraduate institution are essential. Applications should include: (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a letter of application which includes a statement of educational philosophy, teaching experience, and research interests; (3) evidence of teaching effectiveness; (4) sample of scholarship; (5) three letters of recommendation sent under separate cover; and (6) graduate transcripts. Send to: Chair, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Lewis & Clark College, 0615 SW Palatine Hill Road, Portland, OR 97219. Review of applications will begin on October 15, and continue until the position is filled. Lewis and Clark College is an equal opportunity employer that welcomes and encourages applications from women and minority candidates. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. Negotiable. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Macalester College department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure track position in biological anthropology at the assistant professor level to begin fall, 2008. Applicants should have the PhD in hand by time of appointment, substantial fieldwork experience and show promise of sound scholarship. The department seeks a candidate broadly trained in the four fields; specialization open. Candidates should be prepared to teach introductory four-field courses in anthropology. The ability to teach quantitative methods and/or medical anthropology is a plus. Applications must be received by October 15, 2007 to receive full consideration. Please send letter of application outlining research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, three letters of reference and a sample syllabus to Arjun Guneratne, Chair, Department of Anthropology, Macalester College, Saint Paul, MN 55105. Macalester College is a highly selective, private liberal arts college in the vibrant Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area, with a population of approximately three million people and home to numerous colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota. Macalester's diverse student body comprises over 1800 undergraduates from 50 states and the District of Columbia and over 90 countries. The college is proud of its long-standing, mission-driven commitment to outstanding academic excellence with a special emphasis on internationalism, multiculturalism, and service to society. We are especially interested in applicants dedicated to the pursuit of excellence in both teaching and research/creative activity within a liberal arts college community. As an equal opportunity employer supportive of affirmative efforts to achieve diversity among its faculty, Macalester College strongly encourage applications from women and members of underrepresented minority groups. Notes: Employer will assist with relocation costs. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Marquette University, the department of social and cultural sciences seeks applications for a tenure track position at the rank of assistant professor, beginning August 2008. Candidates should have the ability to relate their specialties to a multidisciplinary department that includes majors in anthropology, sociology, social welfare and justice, and criminology and law studies. Exceptional student-faculty rapport, small classes, and active scholarship are hallmarks of our program. Candidates will be expected to teach a 4-field Introduction to Anthropology, mid-level courses in cultural anthropology, and a senior seminar in Anthropological Theory as part of a 3:2 teaching load. Topical and geographic areas are open, although medical and environmental fields would complement existing strengths. Marquette University is located in downtown Milwaukee. Marquette University is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to a diverse faculty, staff, and student body. Women and minority applicants are strongly encouraged to apply. Closing date is October 31, 2007. To apply, visit <http://careers.marquette.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=50916>. In addition to applying on-line, applicants should send a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, transcripts, writing samples, research plan and three letters of reference to: Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Social and Cultural Sciences, Marquette University, PO Box 1881, Milwaukee, WI 53201-1881; fax (414) 288-6444. Requirements: PhD is strongly preferred, ABD's will be considered.

Applicants should demonstrate evidence of strong teaching performance, scholarly productivity, and a sustained research agenda. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

McGill University department of social studies of medicine, in connection with the department of anthropology, invites applications for a tenure track position at the rank of assistant professor to commence September 1, 2008. The successful candidate will be appointed primarily in the faculty of medicine (social studies of medicine) but is expected to obtain a joint appointment in the faculty of arts (department of anthropology). We seek a medical anthropologist with significant publications and research interests in one or more of the following fields: the anthropology of medical and clinical practices; the anthropology of biomedical science and technology; and the globalization of research practices. Geographical areas open. The department of social studies of medicine is a multidisciplinary department (anthropology, history, sociology). Teaching responsibilities will include primarily undergraduate and graduate courses in the department of anthropology (cross-listed in social studies of medicine) and some teaching in the faculty of medicine. The language of instruction at McGill University is English; competence in French is desirable but not required. Priority will be given to applications received by November 30, 2007; the review of applications will continue until January 31, 2008. PhD at the time of application is required, postdoctoral experience and a substantial set of publications are a major asset. Applicants should send a curriculum vitae; a cover letter that indicates completed research, current research program, and teaching experience; copies of up to three publications representing the applicant's current research; and the names, addresses, email coordinates, and phone numbers of three references. Applications should be sent to Search Committee, Social Studies of Medicine, McGill University, 3647 Peel St, Montreal, Qc, H3A 1X1, Canada. McGill University is committed to academic excellence and scholarly achievement, and all qualified candidates are encouraged to apply. However, in accordance with Canadian Immigration requirements priority will be given to Canadians citizens and permanent residents of Canada. McGill University is strongly committed to diversity within its community and welcomes applications from members of visible minority groups and women. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Michigan State University department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position in physical anthropology at the assistant professor level. The appointment will begin August 16, 2008. We seek a physical anthropologist specializing in contemporary human populations (eg human adaptability, growth and development, contemporary human variation, human genetics). Candidates able to teach quantitative methods will receive special consideration. Candidates must be committed to both undergraduate and graduate education, must display evidence of excellence in research, and will be expected to obtain extramural funding for their research. Priority will be given to candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests expand current faculty expertise. International experience or demonstrated interest in international issues is an advantage. A PhD in physical anthropology is required by date of appointment. Women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. Please send application letter, including statement of research and teaching interests, cv, names of three references, and up to three publications to: Physical Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Michigan State University, 354 Baker Hall, East Lansing, MI 48824. The closing date for applications is November 15, 2007, or until the position is filled. Michigan State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Requirements specializing in contemporary human populations (eg human adaptability, growth and development, contemporary human variation, human genetics). A PhD in physical anthropology is required by date of appointment. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

University of Minnesota department of anthropology in the college of liberal arts at the University of Minnesota invites applications for a full-time assistant professor of anthropology. PhD in anthropology or related field in hand by date of appointment. Exceptional ABD's may be considered for appointment at the level of tenure-track instructor. Specialization in historical archaeology; a demonstrated research record and publications in issues of power, diasporas, inequality and structural violence among communities and populations with a legacy of subordination by slavery, discrimination, and/or colonization in the Americas preferred. Duties/Responsibilities: Maintain an active program of research and publication; value and encourage research and teaching across the sub-disciplines of anthropology and in interdepartmental programs, and be committed to expanding an already existing cultural heritage studies master's program. An individual willing to have at least one geographical focus in Minnesota preferred. Teach undergraduate and graduate courses in the department as well as participate in committee service. This is a 100%-time, tenure-track faculty appointment beginning fall semester 2008. Review of applications will begin on October 22, 2007. Position will remain open until filled. Application Instructions: only online applications will be accepted. Go to: employment.umn.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=60426. Notes: international candidates will be considered. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

Mississippi State University department of sociology, anthropology, and social work, pending budgetary approval, is seeking applicants for an assistant professor, tenure track position in biological anthropology, beginning January or August 2008. PhD in anthropology required at time of appointment. Preference is for a bioarchaeologist with research specialty in native North America. Dedication to scholarship, teaching and involving undergraduates in research is essential, as is commitment to our applied anthropology MA program. Teaching load is five classes per year, to include introductory, upper-division, and graduate courses. For program details, see www.msstate.edu/dept/anthropology/programs. Applicants should include a letter describing teaching and research interests, a vita, and names and contact information for three references. Supporting materials that demonstrate teaching and scholarly achievement should accompany the application. Send materials to Chair, Anthropology Recruitment Committee, PO Box C, Mississippi State, MS 39762. Review of application will begin November 1, 2007, and continue until position is filled. The largest university in the state, Mississippi State University is a public, land grant university of approximately 16,000 students classified as doctoral/research extensive by the Carnegie Foundation. MSU is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and encourages applications from minority and female candidates. Requirements: PhD in anthropology required at time of appointment. Preference is for a bioarchaeologist with research specialty in native North America. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Muhlenberg College the department of sociology and anthropology at Muhlenberg College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor, beginning August 2008. We are seeking an anthropologically-oriented bioarchaeologist, specialization open, to support and develop our emergent archaeology and biological anthropology curricula. While the department expects faculty to be actively engaged in research, its primary commitment is to quality undergraduate education. Applicants must, therefore, demonstrate effective and innovative teaching, plus a strong commitment to the goals of a liberal arts education. Successful candidates will hold a PhD in anthropology, exhibit an ability to advise and teach, show promise of continuing scholarship, and demonstrate an ability to work collegially and cooperatively in a combined sociology and anthropology department. Candidates must also be capable of teaching quantitative methods in anthropology, and human evolution; an ability to teach anthropological theory is desirable. Founded in 1848, Muhlenberg College is a highly selective, independent, coeducational, residential college of liberal arts and sciences located in eastern Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley, one hour north of Philadelphia and 90 minutes west of New York City. Candidates should submit a letter of application, cv, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi or syllabi for proposed courses, and three letters of reference. Applications must be received no later than October 15, 2007 and should be addressed to Search Committee, Department of Sociology & Anthropology, Muhlenberg College, 2400 Chew Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania 18104. Muhlenberg College is an equal opportunity employer and offers benefits to same sex domestic partners of employees. We encourage applications from candidates that can contribute to the diversity of our campus. View all current openings at <http://jobs.muhlenberg.edu>. Notes: US residents only. Competitive salary and benefits. Requirements: PhD in anthropology required. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

New York University tenure-track position in paleolithic archaeology, department of anthropology, arts and science. The department of anthropology invites applications from outstanding scholars for a tenure-track position in archaeology at the rank of assistant professor, to start September 1, 2008, pending administrative and budgetary approval. The department is looking for scholars with exceptional records in teaching and research in paleolithic archaeology, with a geographical focus on Africa or Asia. It is anticipated that the candidate will complement and strengthen departmental interests in Paleolithic and medieval archaeology of Europe, state formation in ancient Near East and South Asia, prehistoric art, technology, zooarchaeology, skeletal morphology, dental anthropology and human paleontology. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Pending budgetary approval. Requirements: Application deadline is November 15, 2007. Please send letter, curriculum vitae and names of three referees to: Professor Terry Harrison, Department of Anthropology, New York University, 25 Waverly Place, New York, NY, 10003. NYU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

New York University department of anthropology invites applications from outstanding scholars for an assistant professor, tenure-track position in our program in culture and media, to start September 1, 2008, pending administrative and budgetary approval. We seek a scholar with training in sociocultural and visual anthropology; anthropological research on some dimension of visual media compatible with our focus on the visual mediation of cultural difference; knowledge of the history and theory of ethnographic film; a track record in ethnographic documentary production sufficient to teach and supervise students in using nonlinear facilities; and an ability to develop and fund public events and new initiatives. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Pending budgetary approval. Requirements: Please send application, including letter, vita and names of three referees, by November 15, 2007, to Chair, Department of Anthropology, New York University, 25 Waverly Place, New York, NY, 10003. NYU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Pending budgetary approval, the department of anthropology seeks qualified candidates to fill two positions (rank open) in physical/biological anthropology to begin August, 2008. We expect to fill one position at the rank of assistant professor. Notes: two openings. Requirements: candidates should have a record of scholarship (individuals appointed at the rank of associate or full professor will be expected to have an active funded research/publication program), and demonstrated teaching ability. The successful candidate must be committed to high quality undergraduate education and show a willingness to include undergraduate students in their research activities. Candidates must hold or anticipate a PhD in anthropology by August 1, 2008. Applicants should send a statement of research interests, including a description of how students could be incorporated into their research activity, current curriculum vitae; a teaching portfolio (to include sample syllabi and course evaluations); and three letters of reference to Arthur D Murphy, Head, Department of Anthropology, 426 Graham Building, The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Greensboro, NC 27412-5001. Reviews of complete dossiers will begin November 1, 2007; the position will remain open until the position is filled. UNC Greensboro is especially proud of the diversity of its student body and we seek to attract an equally diverse applicant pool for this position, including women and members of minority groups. We are an EEO/AA employer with a strong commitment to increasing faculty diversity and will respond creatively to the needs of dual-career couples. Additional information can be found at www.uncg.edu/ant. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

Northwestern University department of anthropology at Northwestern University invites applications for a full-time tenure line faculty position in the linguistic or sociocultural anthropology of the Middle East and North Africa (MENA), rank open. We seek applicants as part of a university-wide initiative to develop MENA studies at Northwestern, which includes new faculty lines in history and political science as well as anthropology. Applicants must be engaged in ongoing ethnographic research in the region, and demonstrate teaching experience. Candidates will be expected to teach at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Topics of research are open, but we are particularly interested in applicants who complement the interests of existing faculty in anthropology and also bridge to other units on campus. Please send letter of application, vita, statement of research and teaching philosophy, and the names and addresses of three references to Robert Launay, Department of Anthropology, Northwestern University, 1810 Hinman Ave, Evanston IL 60208. We will begin reviewing applications on October 15 and will continue until a suitable candidate is found. Northwestern University of an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. Hiring is contingent upon eligibility to work in the US. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Northwestern University department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position in medical anthropology at the assistant professor level beginning fall, 2008. We seek an anthropologist with interests in bio-cultural approaches to medical anthropology that complement current faculty strengths/interests. Applicants should have an active research program and publications in medical anthropology, and should demonstrate the potential to obtain external funding. Successful candidates will be involved in the ongoing development of the undergraduate and graduate curricula in medical anthropology and global health, including the department's recently created joint PhD/MPH program. Please send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and names/addresses of 3 references to: Helen Schwartzman, Chair, Medical Anthropology Search, Department of Anthropology, Northwestern University, 1810 Hinman Avenue, Evanston, IL 60208. Review of applications will begin on October 15 and will continue until the position is filled. Northwestern University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer, and encourages applications from women and minority candidates. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Pennsylvania State University department of anthropology invites applications for up to two tenure-track positions (rank flexible, effective August 2008), for individuals with expertise in the analysis and visualization of complex spatial data, especially in archaeological, paleoanthropological (including morphological), paleodemographic and modern demographic contexts. Individuals from any scholarly field or sub-discipline are encouraged to apply, but the successful candidate(s) must have a record of anthropologically relevant research and teaching, publications commensurate with rank, and a demonstrated ability to attract external funding. GIS expertise is required. Specialization in spatial statistics, modeling (including traditional spatial analysis, agent-based or microsimulation techniques, and spatiotemporal approaches), remote sensing, or image analysis is highly desirable. The successful candidate(s) will develop and teach GIS courses and others that complement and augment the existing departmental curriculum, which emphasizes archaeology and bioanthropology on both graduate and undergraduate levels. They will be expected to provide leadership and vision in expanding the scope and sophistication of GIS and spatial analysis within the department and across the College, to acquire funding for innovative GIS applications, to attract graduate students, to collaborate with other department faculty, and to establish links with scholars elsewhere in the University and at other institutions. Candidates' skills and interests should be consistent with the anthropology department's mission, which is strongly integrative, scientific, and quantitative, and which has a long tradition of demographic, genetic, evolutionary, and ecological research both in the field and in the laboratory. Detailed information about the department is available on www.anthro.psu.edu. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2007, and will continue until the position is filled. Interviews will commence in November 2007. Send letter of applications, cv, and the names of three references to: Wendy Fultz, Department Staff Assistant, (wad3@psu.edu), Anthropology Faculty Search Committee, Box SAA, 414 Carpenter Building, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802. Penn State is committed to affirmative action, equal opportunity and the diversity of its work force. Notes: two openings. Requirements: GIS expertise is required. Specialization in spatial statistics, modeling (including traditional spatial analysis, agent-based or microsimulation techniques, and spatiotemporal approaches), remote sensing or image analysis is highly desirable. Candidates' skills and interests should be consistent with the anthropology department's mission, which is strongly integrative, scientific and quantitative, and which has a long tradition of demographic, genetic, evolutionary and ecological research both in the field and in the laboratory. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. The department of geography and anthropology at Cal Poly Pomona invites applications for a tenure-track position in anthropology at the rank of assistant professor to begin fall 2008. General anthropologists, biological anthropologists and cultural anthropologists are encouraged to apply. Specializations in applied anthropology are especially welcomed. The position: The new faculty member will teach undergraduate classes in general and biological anthropology, along with a regional specialty and course(s) with a community component. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and service to the university. The successful candidate will demonstrate an interest in involving undergraduates in research and field activity, an ability to work in an interdisciplinary environment, and an enthusiasm for hands-on, learning-centered education. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Dependent on experience. Requirements: minimum qualifications: PhD in anthropology from an accredited university by July 1, 2008; evidence of 2 years of university teaching experience; please send teaching evaluations; evidence of ability to work with and mentor a diverse student population; evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development). This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Quinnipiac University. The department of sociology, college of liberal arts, at Quinnipiac University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in cultural anthropology, beginning in Fall 2008. The appointee must have a PhD in anthropology by the time of appointment. Preference will be given to candidates with a focus on social issues within developing countries. The successful candidate will be expected to teach in the new university curriculum and must show evidence of dynamic teaching as well as professional and scholarly activity. The appointee will join a growing department that currently offers undergraduate majors in sociology, social services, gerontology, and criminal justice. Salary and benefits are very competitive. Applicants should send a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, and supporting documentation (eg, writing sample, course syllabi) to: Lynne Hodgson, Chair, Department of Sociology, CL-AC1, Quinnipiac University, 275 Mt. Carmel Avenue, Hamden, CT 06518. Applications should be received by October 15, 2007. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Rice University department of anthropology seeks applications for a position in sociocultural anthropology at the rank of associate or full professor. Leading candidates will have done substantial research outside Europe and the US. They will be able substantially to contribute to the consolidation and strengthening of the department's engagement with the social and cultural analysis of contemporary systems, agents and agencies of authority and expertise. They will have a distinguished reputation in the US and abroad and a vigorous record of publication and scholarly engagement. The department is especially interested in candidates with areal specializations in Latin America. Sufficiently qualified candidates will be eligible for an endowed Jamail Chair in Latin American studies. Rice is an equal opportunity employer with a strong interest in the diversity of its faculty. It offers spousal and domestic partner benefits. The department strongly urges women and minority candidates to apply. Applicants seeking an interview at the 2008 AAA meetings should send a letter of introduction, a curriculum vitae and the names of at least three referees to Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology—MS 20, Rice University, PO Box 1892, Houston, TX 77251-1892 by 3 November 2007. The final deadline for receipt of applications is December 10, 2007. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Riverside. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor level, beginning July 1, 2008. PhD in anthropology is required. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. This position is concerned with anthropological approaches to transnational communities that have one of their bases in Southern California, with foci on their geographic, demographic, sociocultural and political-economic contexts and internal dynamics. Of interests are the dynamics of national, ethnic, gender, and racial identity formation within such communities, as they are shaped within and by their transnational contexts. Types of transnational communities that are of interest range from those of impoverished migrant workers to wealthy multinational capitalists and entrepreneurs, although primary concern is with the former. This position articulates with interests in Latin American studies, global studies, women's studies, ethnic studies, sociology, religious studies, and SEARIP in CHASS as well as with programs in the Graduate School of Education, the Blakely

Center, UC-MEXUS, the Presley Center, and potentially public policy. Review of completed applications will begin November 1, 2007, and will continue until the position is filled. Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a letter describing current and future research and teaching directions, copies of publications, and three letters of reference. Send applications and inquiries to Juliet McMullin, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, University of California, Riverside, CA 92521-0418. The University of California, Riverside is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. The university recognizes domestic partners in its employee benefit packages. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Riverside. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor level, beginning July 1, 2008. PhD in anthropology is required. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. This position focuses on critical political ecology, coupled with environmental studies and international development; human-environment relationships; and land use and distribution. This can include issues such as social discrimination, spatial segregation, urban violence, and human agency and rights in the context of transformed natural and built environments, including degraded, devastated, or threatened ones; within that context, concerns with environmental recovery, sustainable food and energy production, and environmental justice are strongly encouraged. The position articulates with interests in the health initiative, public policy, economics, ethnic studies, religious studies, sociology, history, women's studies, and global studies in CHASS and the center for conservation biology in CNAS. It potentially articulates with the concerns of UC-MEXUS as well as the various organized research units on campus, eg CCERT, the Presley Center, the Genomics Institute, and the Blakely Center for Sustainable Development. Review of completed applications will begin November 1, 2007 and will continue until the position is filled. Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a letter describing current and future research and teaching directions, copies of publications, and three letters of reference. Send applications and inquiries to Professor Wendy Ashmore, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, University of California, Riverside, CA 92521-0418. The University of California, Riverside is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. The university recognizes domestic partners in its employee benefit packages. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Employer will assist with relocation costs. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Rutgers University, associate/full professor, childhood studies. The department of childhood studies seeks a scholar whose research will complement and expand its vibrant intellectual community of faculty and students. Candidates must be outstanding scholars whose research interests and projects address the lives or contexts of children and childhood. Disciplinary affiliation is of less importance than the quality of candidates' research and a demonstrated appreciation for interdisciplinary approaches to the study of children and childhood. Applications from anthropologists, criminologists, demographers, economists, historians, literary critics, philosophers, political scientists, psychologists and sociologists, as well as scholars of American studies and gender studies, are welcome. Situated on the leading edge of a growing field inquiry and research, the department offers BS, MA and PhD degrees. Childhood studies is central to the campus' goals and enjoys the strong financial and intellectual backing of the University. The recently founded department will continue to grow through the addition of new faculty in future years. Rutgers-Camden, a beautiful, urban campus expanding to accommodate the growth of Southern New Jersey, is located just across the Delaware River from Philadelphia. The university and department have a strong commitment to achieving diversity among faculty and staff, and we strongly encourage women and minorities to apply for this position. Candidates can learn more about the campus and the department of childhood studies at: <http://children.camden.rutgers.edu>, and by contacting Department Chair Daniel Hart (Daniel.Hart@Rutgers.edu). Applications should include a letter indicating interest, cv, representative publications and three letters of recommendations, and should be sent to Daniel Hart, Center for Children and Childhood Studies, Rutgers University, Camden, NJ 08102. The position is open until filled, but completed applications received by October 15, 2007 will receive fullest consideration. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Requirements: PhD, EdD. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. The Ethnic Studies department invites applications for a full-time, academic year, tenure track position at the rank of assistant/associate professor to begin September 8, 2008. Salary and rank are commensurate with experience and qualifications. Candidates must have expertise in, and be prepared to teach African American studies from a comparative perspective that explores the intersecting issues of race, gender and ethnicity. Duties include: teaching the major's lower division core courses and its new upper division offerings; pursuing a program of original scholarship; advising students, committee service and contributing to the development of a newly established major degree program in comparative ethnic studies. Qualifications: a completed PhD in African American studies, comparative ethnic studies, post-colonial, cultural studies, or a comparable program in social sciences or humanities required at time of application; and a record of scholarship and excellent teaching is required. Salary and rank are commensurate with experience and qualications. Closing Date: November 13, 2007. To apply, please visit www.calpolyjobs.org, complete a required online faculty application and apply to requisition #101352. Attach the following required materials to your online application: cover letter, curriculum vitae, and writing sample. Please refer to online posting instructions for mailing official transcripts, three current letters of recommendation, a sample of recent scholarship, and recent teaching evaluations. Closing date: November 13, 2007. Cal Poly is strongly committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and nominations of all qualified individuals. EEO. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Santa Clara University, department of anthropology, invites applications for an appointment in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor (tenure track) level beginning in September 2008. The successful applicant should have a PhD in anthropology at time of appointment and research and teaching interests in applied anthropology (specifically, only in the fields of development or health). Preference will be given to those with experience working with historically underserved groups. Teaching expectations include classes within the applicant's specialty as well as Applied Anthropology, Introduction to Cultural Anthropology, and Anthropological Methods. Geographic research areas should complement existing faculty. The candidate will be expected to develop research engaging students with local multicultural communities. The university has a well-developed community based learning program in the Ignatian Center's Arrupe program (www.scu.ignatiancenter.arrupe). Santa Clara is a Catholic Jesuit, value oriented university located in the heart of the Silicon Valley. Faculty must excel in both scholarship and teaching undergraduates. The University is committed to the strategic goal of enriching the quality of our community of scholars by increasing the diversity among faculty, staff and students. We will conduct prearranged interviews with applicants at the AAA meeting in Washington DC. Santa Clara University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, committed to excellence through diversity, and, in this spirit, particularly welcomes applications from women, persons of color, and members of historically underrepresented groups. The University will provide reasonable accommodations to all qualified individuals with a disability. Also in accordance with the federal Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act, the university annually collects and makes publicly available information about campus crimes and other reportable incidents. (www.scu.edu/cs/). Notes: international candidates will be considered. Requirements: Submit the following (in hard copy): a cover letter that includes statements of teaching philosophy, research agenda, application of your scholarship to solving real world problems, and academic experiences with and interest in culturally diverse groups; a curriculum vitae, including names of three references; unofficial transcript; teaching evaluations; and two sample publications (presented papers or dissertation chapters acceptable). All documents must be received by October 15. Send documents to: Kealhofer, Department of Anthropology, Santa Clara University, 500 El Camino Real, Santa Clara, CA 95053 0310. Email: ikealhofer@scu.edu. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Santa Cruz department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured scholar to participate in our "Emerging Worlds" program, which considers entangled histories of the making and transformation of modern kinds and categories. (See www2.ucsc.edu/anthro for a statement about the program.) While the area of research specialization is open, we are interested in work that addresses one or more of the following: longue-durée and/or alternative histories; process geographies and region-making; the formation of knowledge systems, ecologies, language ideologies, or ways of life. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and mentoring. UCSC encourages candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service. Rank: assistant professor (tenure-track). Salary: $48,100-$53,800. Rank: associate professor (tenured) Salary: $59,700-$66,100. Salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. Notes: employer will assist with relocation costs. Requirements: Minimum qualifications: Assistant level—PhD or equivalent in anthropology or closely related field, completed by July 1, 2008. The successful candidate must present strong evidence of research activity and university teaching experience or demonstrated potential for university teaching. Associate level—PhD or equivalent in anthropology or closely related field, demonstrated excellence in research productivity, and in teaching. Position available: July 1, 2008. To apply: applicants should provide a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation*, and copies of publications or other writing samples. Please refer to provision #555-08 in your reply. These materials should be sent to: Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, University of California, 1156 High Street, Santa Cruz, CA 95064. Closing date: all materials must be postmarked by November 1, 2007. *All letters are considered confidential documents. Please direct your references to the UCSC Confidentiality Statement at: http://ahr.ucsc.edu/academic_policies_and_procedures/cappm/confstm.htm. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

University of California, Santa Cruz department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in the anthropology of Muslim cultures. We welcome applicants doing research in any area of the world, especially scholars who emphasize one or more of the following themes: the making of transnational collaborations or networks; cross-cultural engagements with other religious and ethnic communities; new theories of religion, politics, science, medicine or technology; new economies, kinship and sex/gender systems. This appointment will participate in developing our new programmatic focus on "emerging worlds" and in the campus-wide initiative in Muslim studies. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and mentoring. UCSC is especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service. Notes: Employer will assist with relocation costs. Minimum qualifications: applicant must have a PhD or equivalent in anthropology or closely related field, completed by July 1, 2008. The successful candidate must present strong evidence of research activity and university teaching experience, or demonstrated potential for university teaching. Position available: July 1, 2008. To apply: applicants should provide a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation*, and copies of publications or other writing samples. Please refer to position #843-08 in your reply. These materials should be sent to: Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, University of California, 1156 High Street, Santa Cruz, CA 95064. *All letters will be treated as confidential documents; please direct your references to UCSC's confidentiality statement at http://ahr.ucsc.edu/academic_policies_and_procedures/cappm/confstm.htm. Closing date: All materials must be postmarked by October 15, 2007. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Sarah Lawrence College invites applications for a full time, tenure track position in linguistic anthropology to begin August 2008. We seek an innovative teacher scholar whose work explores the role of language in society. A wide range of research interests will be considered; these can include the study of theories of language and culture, linguistic ideologies and practices, the politics of language, verbal art, language and identity, discourse analysis, and socio linguistic methods of analysis. The successful candidate should have demonstrated excellence, or clear promise of excellence, in teaching linguistic anthropology at the undergraduate level, including courses in general linguistic theory, and working individually with students. We are especially interested in candidates who conduct research in non-English speaking communities. Sarah Lawrence has a strong commitment to the principle of diversity. In that spirit, we especially welcome applications from under-represented groups. PhD in anthropology required. Applicants should submit a letter describing their approach to teaching and their scholarly interests; curriculum vita; syllabi for two proposed courses; sample of writing; and three letters of recommendation by November 1, 2007, to: Linguistic Anthropology Search, c/o Rosemary Weeks, Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, NY 10708. Some interviews will be conducted at the annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Washington DC. For information on Sarah Lawrence College, our curriculum, teaching methods, and philosophy of education, please see our web site at www.slc.edu. EOE; women and minorities encouraged to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Scripps College. A women's liberal arts college with a strong interdisciplinary tradition, invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position in cultural anthropology with an emphasis on gender, sexualities, and feminist theory at the assistant professor level. This faculty member will contribute regularly to the Scripps-Pitzer anthropology program. Participation in the interdisciplinary programs of the college is also desirable. Applicants must have a PhD in hand by the time of appointment and demonstrate excellence in teaching. Send a letter of application, vita, and three letters of reference to Julia E. Liss, Chair, Anthropology Search Committee, Scripps College Box 1037, 1030 Columbia Avenue, Claremont, CA 91711. For further information contact Julia Liss at 909/607-3541 or email at julia.liss@scrippscollege.edu. Applications must be received by November 1, 2007, to ensure full consideration. Scripps College is one of the seven members of the Claremont Colleges cluster located 35 miles east of Los Angeles. In a continuing effort to enrich its academic environment and provide equal educational and employment opportunities, Scripps College actively encourages applications from women and members of historically underrepresented groups and prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation/preference and gender identity/expression. Scripps College offers employment benefits to domestic partners of employees. Requirements: PhD in hand by time of appointment. Notes: Negotiated with dean upon offer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Southern Methodist University. department of anthropology in Dedman College invites applications for a tenure-track appointment as assistant professor in cultural anthropology beginning August 2008. We seek to hire a scholar with expertise in global health and with field experience in Asia, the Middle East, or Latin America. Preference will be given to candidates whose interests are complementary to those of our current cultural faculty (ie, medical anthropology and globalization/development). Applications may be submitted electronically or by letter, and should include a current curriculum vitae and contact information for three references. To ensure full consideration for the position, the application must be received by October 1, 2007, but the committee will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. The committee will notify applicants of its employment decision after the position is filled. We expect to do interviews at the AAA meeting. Applications should be sent to Robert V. Kemper, Chair, Department of Anthropology, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, TX 75275 or rkemper@smu.edu. SMU will not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, disability or veteran status. SMU is also committed to nondiscrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Stanford University. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track faculty appointment in sociocultural anthropology. The term of appointment will begin on September 1, 2008. Stanford University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. We actively encourage applications from women and minorities. The deadline for applications is December 7, 2007, but we strongly urge candidates to apply before November 9, 2007, so they can be screened for possible interviews at the AAA meeting in Washington, DC, November 28–December 2, 2007. Send vita, letter describing qualifications and interests, and one example of written work to James Ferguson, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, 450 Serra Mall, Building 50, Main Quad, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305-2034. Assistant Professor candidates should also submit the names of three referees. Requirements: The appointment is open as to rank. Applicants with a broad range of interests will be considered, but preference will be given to applicants with strength in the geographical area of South Asia. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Texas A&M University. The department of anthropology invites applications for a position in cultural anthropology beginning Fall 2008. This is a tenure-track assistant professor position. The candidate's work should be empirical and quantitative; ethnographic fieldwork experience is essential. Specialty is open, but a focus on evolutionary approaches to behavior and culture, ecology, demography, economics, or reproduction is preferred. Candidates should have a PhD in anthropology (by fall 2008), teaching experience, an active research program, and a demonstrated ability to secure external funding. ABDs may be considered. Responsibilities include teaching two courses per semester, at the graduate and undergraduate level in the anthropology department. Positive tenure and promotion decisions require a strong research and publication record, evidence of high-quality teaching, and participation in university governance. Texas A&M University is a leading public research university with nearly 45,000 students. The university is strongly committed to creating a climate that values and nurtures collegiality, diversity, pluralism and the uniqueness of each person. Faculty networks for Black, Mexican-American/Latino, and women faculty members provide collegiality and support for minority and women faculty members. The department of anthropology has 24 faculty members, including six cultural anthropologists, and offers BA, MA, and PhD degree programs. Review of applications will begin October 15 and continue until the position is filled. We plan to interview at the AAA meetings. For full consideration, please send a cover letter outlining research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, two writing samples, evidence of teaching experience, and the names and contact information of three references to: Michael Alvard, Chair, Cultural Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Texas A&M University, 4352 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4352. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity employer and encourages underrepresented minorities and women to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

Texas A&M University. The department of anthropology and the women's studies program invite applications for a joint position in cultural anthropology and women's studies, beginning fall 2008. This is a tenure-track position. The ideal candidate will have an active ethnographic research program that focuses on gender and Islamic communities in the Middle East, Africa, South Asia or Southeast Asia. This is one of six cluster hires involving joint appointments in the women's studies program; the position is also intended to strengthen the graduate program in cultural anthropology. Responsibilities include teaching two courses per semester at the graduate and undergraduate level; course assignments will be divided equally between anthropology and women's studies. Review of applications will begin October 15 and continue until the position is filled. We plan to interview at the AAA meeting in Washington DC. For full consideration, please send a cover letter outlining research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, one or two writing samples, evidence of teaching experience, and letters from three references to: Cynthia Werner, Chair, Cultural Anthropology/Women's Studies Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Texas A&M University, 4352 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4352. Texas A&M University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and encourages underrepresented minorities and women to apply. Notes: international candidates will be considered. The following information is provided by the employer in accordance with AAA policy. AAA is not responsible for verifying the accuracy of these statements. They are not part of the actual position description submitted for publication by the employer. Requirements: Applicants must have a PhD in anthropology or related field (by fall 2008), a demonstrated commitment to women's studies as a discipline (a graduate certificate or advanced degree in women's studies is a plus), teaching experience, an active research program, and an ability to secure external funding. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not offer health insurance benefits to eligible partners.

Texas Christian University (TCU) invites applications for a tenure-track position in anthropology at the assistant or associate level, beginning in August 2008. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Requirements: We seek a broadly trained anthropologist who specializes in either cultural anthropology or archaeology, has exhibited career advancement beyond the PhD, has an active research agenda, and has demonstrated excellence in teaching. Geographic focus and topical specialization are open. The ideal candidate will be able to teach two upper-division topics courses in his or her areas of specialization and introductory courses in two of three subfields: cultural anthropology, physical anthropology, and archaeology. We seek a colleague who adds diversity to our faculty's research and teaching interests and will be a partner in building a strong undergraduate anthropology program. A PhD in anthropology is required at the time of application. Applications should include a letter detailing research and teaching experience, curriculum vitae, and three letters of recommendation. Transcripts and a writing sample are not necessary for the initial application but will be required for final consideration. The search committee will be conducting preliminary interviews at the AAA meeting in Washington DC. The TCU anthropology program is part of a cooperative, multidisciplinary department in a supportive academic community. A review of applications will begin on November 1, 2007, and continue until the position is filled. Send materials to Mike Katovich, Chair, Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Sociology, Criminal Justice and Anthropology, Texas Christian University, Box 298710, Fort Worth, TX 76129. TCU is an AA/EEO employer. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Truman State University. Position: temporary assistant professor of anthropology or sociology, available August 18, 2008. This is a one-year (full-time) appointment with the possibility of renewal for up to three additional years depending on department needs (for a possibility of four years total). Responsibilities: teach Introduction to Anthropology or Introduction to Sociology and upper division courses in consultation with the department faculty. Preference will be given to candidates who complement existing faculty strengths by bringing experience in qualitative methods and/or a focus on global issues. Program: the department of anthropology, geography and sociology is part of the college of arts and sciences at Truman State University. The department has six faculty members and approximately 85 undergraduate majors in the sociology/anthropology program plus a number of minors in anthropology, geography or sociology. The department also offers courses in Truman's Liberal Studies program. For more information about the sociology/anthropology program, please visit <http://sociology-anthropology.truman.edu/>. Application: send a letter of application, current curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy and commitment to the liberal arts and sciences and student development, statement of teaching and research interests and goals, three written letters of recommendation, and all graduate transcripts (official transcripts and complete files required prior to consideration) to: Amber Johnson, Chair, Department of Anthropology, Geography and Sociology, Truman State University, 100 E Normal St, Kirksville, MO 63501-4221. Truman State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act; women and minority candidates are particularly encouraged to apply. If hired, applicants must provide proof of eligibility to work in the US and documentation of degrees if transcripts are not used. Review of applications will begin September 1, 2007, and continue until a suitable candidate is hired. Notes: Salary commensurate with experience; benefits package includes life, health and disability insurance, retirement contributions, and reimbursement for moving expenses. Requirements: Required: PhD candidate (ABD) in anthropology or sociology; Evidence of or the potential for teaching effectiveness; Strong oral and written communication skills. Preferred: PhD in anthropology or sociology; evidence of commitment to liberal arts education; Evidence of scholarly activity. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Tufts University tenure-track appointment as assistant professor of sociocultural anthropology, beginning September 2008. We are seeking candidates whose research engages transnational and national political processes from an anthropological perspective. This focus may include (but is not limited to) the anthropology of the state, forms of governance, citizenship, human rights, humanitarian intervention, environmental crises, refugees and displacement, and the politics of global security. Preference will be given to candidates specializing in geographical areas not covered by the department, especially the Middle East and East or Southeast Asia. Candidates must demonstrate an active research agenda and a strong record of scholarship. PhD required at time of appointment. Teaching experience strongly preferred. Expected to teach introductory-level course, area and topic courses, seminar in area of research, and theory in rotation with other faculty. Review of applications is ongoing and continues until the position is filled. For full consideration, complete applications should be received by October 10, 2007. Send application letter, cv, one writing sample, and names and contact information for three references by both hard copy and email. Email to: SocAnth@gmail.com. For the subject heading, write: "anthropology position" + your last name. Hard copy to: Chair, Anthropology Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Tufts University, Medford, MA 02155, USA. Tufts University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. We are committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty. Members of underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

UCLA. The department of anthropology seeks a biological anthropologist for a tenure-track position starting July 1, 2008. PhD required at time of appointment. The successful candidate's research interests will complement existing strengths of the UCLA biological anthropology program, which emphasizes an evolutionary perspective, and will fit comfortably among other anthropologists in a strong four-field department. We particularly welcome applications from scholars specializing in evolutionary approaches to behavior, cognition, or life histories of contemporary humans and/or extant great apes. Candidates with ongoing field research programs are especially encouraged. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae and contact information of three referees to: Alessandro Duranti, Chair, Department of Anthropology, University of California, Los Angeles, Los Angeles, CA 90095-1553. Review of applications will begin on Dec 1, 2007. UCLA is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The department has a strong commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Vanderbilt University invites applications and nominations for the position of Chair, department of anthropology. The candidate will have successful administrative experience, and a record of teaching excellence and scholarly accomplishment which will support appointment at the rank of professor. Topics of research interest are open to all fields of indigenous anthropology and to all geographic areas in Latin America. The anticipated starting date as chair is the beginning of the 2008 fall semester. The Chair assumes administrative responsibility for the department, exercising leadership in resource management, faculty development, and curriculum matters. The successful applicant will join other colleagues specializing in Latin American studies within a research-oriented and growing department of anthropology. The department has an outstanding, well-funded doctoral program. Vanderbilt rewards excellence in teaching and research with competitive salaries and benefits and opportunities for research funds. Please send letter, resume, and a list of referees to: Recruitment Committee, Department of Anthropology, Vanderbilt University, 2301 Vanderbilt Place, VU Station B #356050, Nashville, TN 37235-6050. FAX 615-343-0230. The preferred deadline for application materials is November 1, 2007. Applications may also be emailed to anthropology@vanderbilt.edu with the subject line: chair application. Vanderbilt University is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer, and encourages applications from women and minorities. Notes: International Candidates Will Be Considered. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

Vanderbilt University announces a position in indigenous Andean ethnography in the department of anthropology at the level of assistant professor. All theoretical interests and approaches will be given consideration. The candidate's work should be well-grounded in field research. Interest in and excellence in teaching is essential. The successful applicant will join six other colleagues specializing in South American studies within a research-oriented and growing department of anthropology focused on Latin America. The department has an outstanding, well-funded doctoral program. Vanderbilt rewards excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching and research with competitive salaries and benefits and opportunities for research funds. Please send letter, resume, course evaluations, if available, and a list of referees to: Andean Recruitment Committee, Department of Anthropology, Vanderbilt University, 2301 Vanderbilt Place, VU Station B #356050, Nashville, TN 37235-6050. FAX 615-343-0230. The preferred deadline for application materials is November 15, 2007. Applications may also be emailed to anthropology@vanderbilt.edu with the subject line: Andean Application. Vanderbilt University is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer, and encourages applications from women and minorities. Notes: international candidates will be considered. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same-sex domestic partners.

University of Victoria (www.uvic.ca) invites applications for an appointment as chair of the department of anthropology (<http://anthropology.uvic.ca/>) effective July 1, 2008. The successful candidate will be tenurable at the rank of associate professor or above. The department of anthropology is a vibrant and ambitious department of predominantly junior scholars looking for a senior scholar with a distinguished record as a researcher and teacher with a proven record in or demonstrated potential for academic administration. The new chair will be an anthropologist with research interests related to one of the fields the department has selected as foci: (a) health and inequality; (b) evolutionary ecology; and (c) indigenous peoples. The successful applicant must have a strong commitment to cooperation between the various sub-disciplines of anthropology. The development and expansion of the department's doctoral programme is a major priority. Applications must include complete curriculum vitae and name and addresses (including email, fax and telephone numbers) of three referees whom the department may contact. The University of Victoria is an equity employer and encourages applications from women, persons with disabilities, visible minorities, Aboriginal Peoples, people of all sexual orientations and genders, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of the university. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements Canadian and permanent residents will be given priority. Applications should be sent to: Warren Magnusson, Acting Chair, Department of Anthropology, University of Victoria, PO Box 3050, STN CSC, Victoria, BC V8W 3P5, before October 15, 2007. Notes: international candidates will be considered. Requirements: Tenurable at the rank of associate professor or above. Must have strong commitment to cooperation between the various sub-disciplines of anthropology. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Wake Forest University's anthropology department invites applications for two positions: a tenure-track appointment in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor level and a non-tenure-track position in cultural anthropology at the visiting assistant professor or lecturer level. PhD and demonstrated teaching ability in small and mid-sized classes and commitment to undergraduates required for both positions. The assistant professor's responsibilities include teaching introductory courses for non-majors and upper-level courses including Myth, Ritual and Symbolism, Medical Anthropology and Ethnographic Research Methods. Applicants to this position must have an established ethnographic field school outside of the US and have experience with applied community projects in the US Primary geographic area focus should be outside of North America; South Asia preferred. The visiting assistant professor or lecturer's responsibilities include teaching introduction to cultural anthropology and peoples and cultures of the world. Geographic area focus is open. Applicants to both positions should be broadly trained and dedicated to a teacher/scholar model that includes mentoring and collaborative research with students. Wake Forest University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and members of underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants should send a letter of interest clearly specifying the position sought, current vita, statement of teaching philosophy and list of at least three references by November 1 to Margaret Bender, Chair, Anthropology, WPU, Box 7807, Winston-Salem, NC 27109. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Washington and Lee University. The department of sociology and anthropology invites applications for a new tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in cultural anthropology to begin in September 2008. PhD required and teaching experience is desired. The ideal candidate for our department should be committed to teaching excellence within the liberal arts tradition and be an active scholar whose ongoing research inspires classroom discussion and innovation. Apart from the expectation that the successful applicant will offer courses in introductory anthropology and ethnographic methods, other areas in cultural anthropology are open. Washington and Lee is a highly selective university of approximately 1750 undergraduates and 350 law students located in the Shenandoah Valley, three hours southwest of Washington DC. Please send supporting materials—a letter of application, cv, three letters of recommendation, writing sample and evidence of teaching excellence if available—to David Novack, Chair, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, VA 24450. Applications received by October 1, 2007, will receive full consideration. Preliminary interviews will be conducted at the AAA meeting in Washington D.C. Washington and Lee University is an Equal opportunity employer. If you have questions, please contact David Novack at 540/458-8792 or novackd@wlu.edu. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does not prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Washington College. The department of sociology and anthropology of Washington College invites applications for a tenure-track position in cultural anthropology at the assistant professor level beginning Fall 2008. Specialization in the area of Latin America is preferred. The successful candidate will maintain an active research career, teach six courses per year, mentor undergraduate students, supervise senior theses, and advise the anthropology club and honor society. Teaching experience in a small liberal arts setting is desirable. Send a letter outlining experience and qualifications, a cv, graduate transcripts, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a sample syllabus or course design for an intermediate-level anthropology course, and three letters of reference to John Seidel, Director of Anthropology Program, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, 300 Washington Avenue, Chestertown, Maryland 21620. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2007. Washington College is a competitive four-year liberal arts school located on the Eastern Shore of Maryland near the Chesapeake Bay. Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia are within easy driving distance. Washington College is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and members of traditionally underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Washington College. The department of sociology and anthropology of Washington College invites applications for a tenure-track position in archaeology at the assistant professor level beginning fall 2008. Temporal period and specializations are open, but an interest in environmental archaeology and human ecology is preferred. Experience in the Chesapeake and/or Middle Atlantic regions is desirable, with the ability to involve students in fieldwork. The candidate also should be prepared to teach an introductory biological anthropology course with lab. The successful candidate will maintain an active research career, teach six courses per year, mentor undergraduate students, supervise senior theses, and advise the anthropology club and honor society. Teaching experience in a small liberal arts setting is desirable. Send a letter outlining experience and qualifications, a cv, graduate transcripts, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a sample syllabus or course design for an intermediate-level anthropology course, and three letters of reference to John Seidel, Director of Anthropology Program, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, 300 Washington Avenue, Chestertown, Maryland 21620. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2007. Washington College is a competitive four-year liberal arts school located on the Eastern Shore of Maryland near the Chesapeake Bay. Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia are within easy driving distance. Washington College is an equal opportunity employer. Women and members of traditionally underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible opposite-sex domestic partners.

Washington State University. The department of anthropology at Washington State University invites applications for a full-time permanent tenure track position as an assistant/associate professor on its Pullman campus beginning August 16, 2008. The position includes teaching, research, and service components. Required qualifications include a PhD in anthropology completed by July 1, 2008, a specialty in Native American peoples and cultures or sociocultural anthropology, and active field research and publications. Preferred qualifications include: 1) a regional specialty in North America, especially in the Pacific Northwest or Plateau areas; 2) evidence of research excellence; 3) an active area of field research with potential for graduate student involvement; 4) specialties in gender, medical/public health, political economy, natural resources, anthropology of religion, or psychological anthropology; 5) Ability to teach a four-field introductory course, peoples of native North America, and graduate courses/seminars in ethnographic field methods and cultural theory. Please see the full notice of vacancy (available at <http://libarts.wsu.edu/anthro/>). To apply candidates should supply a letter of application summarizing qualifications, curriculum vitae, and contact information (including email and phone numbers) for at least three references to: John H. Bodley, Chair, Sociocultural Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, PO Box 644910, Washington State University, Pullman, WA 99164-4910, USA. To ensure consideration, complete applications must be postmarked by November 9, 2007. Email applications with materials as attachments are welcomed. WSU is an EEO/AA educator and employer. Protected group members are encouraged to apply. Notes: Telecommuting is allowed. Requirements: Required qualifications include a PhD in anthropology completed by July 1, 2008, a specialty in Native American peoples and cultures or Sociocultural anthropology, and active field research and publications. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer does not appear on the AAUP list of censured institutions.

Wellesley College. The department of anthropology invites applications for a full-time, tenure track assistant professor position beginning fall 2008. Successful candidates will have a PhD in anthropology along with teaching experience and a publication record. Founded in 1875, Wellesley College has been a leader in liberal arts and the education of women for more than 125 years. The college's 500-acre campus near Boston is home to 2,300 undergraduate students. The teaching load (four courses per year) is comparable to many universities, and faculty are expected to maintain an active research program. For more information about being a faculty member at Wellesley College, please see www.wellesley.edu/Dean-College/Diversity/Open_pos/prospectfac.pdf. The position is open, but we especially encourage applications from candidates who have received a broad training in anthropology, including its major sub-fields. We seek applicants who are interested in working in a cooperative and collaborative teaching environment and who are strongly committed to liberal arts education and excellence in scholarship. To apply, send a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, any course syllabi (or proposed courses) and one letter of reference to: Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Wellesley College, Wellesley, MA 02481. Applications are due no later than October 15, 2007. Wellesley College is an EO/AA educational institution and employer. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of the college community and the curriculum. Candidates who believe they will contribute to that goal are encouraged to apply. Requirements: To apply, send a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, any course syllabi (or proposed courses) and one letter of reference to: Chair, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, Wellesley College, Wellesley, MA 02481. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

Western Washington University. The department of anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level to begin September 2008. Review of applications will begin on November 16, 2007. Position is open until filled. Send copies of curriculum vitae, syllabi and related teaching material, teaching evaluations, sample publications, and a list of three referees to Robert Marshall, Chair, Search Committee; Department of Anthropology; Western Washington University; 516 High Street; Bellingham, WA 98225-9083 Fax: 360/650-7668; Email: rcm@cc.wvu.edu. Requirements: The successful candidate will have a PhD, specializing in sociolinguistics and Asian ethnography. Demonstrated scholarship, including ability to conduct research in appropriate original languages, as well as strong English language writing skills and an interest in helping students develop communication skills are necessary. Courses to be taught include introductory cultural anthropology, sociolinguistics, qualitative methods, peoples of Asia as well as more specialized courses in the major, interdisciplinary and graduate programs. High quality teaching is emphasized, but research and engagement in service are also expected. We hope to be able to appoint someone with broad scholarly acquaintance with China, experience in applied anthropology and contemporary global issues, with interdisciplinary teaching experience and familiarity with and sensitivity to cultural diversity. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation/preference. This employer does prohibit discrimination based on gender identity/expression. This employer offers health insurance benefits to eligible same and opposite-sex domestic partners.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH TEXAS

The Nation's First Online Master's Degree in Applied Anthropology

Innovative virtual pedagogy allows you to earn a degree no matter where you are

SPECIALTY AREAS

- Business Anthropology
- Migration and Border Studies
- Medical Anthropology
- Environmental Anthropology
- Anthropology of Education

www.unt.edu/anthropology/onlinemasters • 940-565-2290

AA/EEO/ADA Copyright © 2007 University of North Texas